

The Dime Bank Presents a Check for $1,000 to Habitat for Humanity

Honesdale, PA / June 29, 2016 / Earlier this month, The Dime Bank was presented with the prestigious FHLBank Pittsburgh Pillars of the Community Award in recognition of the bank's commitment to community revitalization. As part of the award, the FHLB-Pittsburgh provided $1,000 to The Dime Bank to pass on as a donation to any worthy, non-profit organization of The Dime Bank's choosing. The Dime Bank chose Habitat for Humanity of Wayne County, which has been providing homes for people in need in Wayne County for 26 years. Through the work of many volunteers, Habitat works to bring people together to build homes, communities, and hope.

President and Chief Executive Officer Gary Beilman stated, "We are honored that we were chosen for the FHLBank Pittsburgh Pillars of the Community Award and we are proud to pass on this donation to our very deserving Habitat of Humanity here in Wayne County. As an involved member of the FHLBank cooperative, The Dime Bank is gratified to be able to assist in the growth of our communities. Last year, using funding from the FHLBank's Community Lending Program, we were able to help develop three large projects. We supported a senior living facility, a personal care center, and job creation at a local small business. The Dime Bank also assisted eleven small businesses start up or grow using the Banking On Business program. Moreover, The Dime Bank has worked with first-time homebuyers to access grant money to lend a hand with down payments and closing costs through the First Front Door program. The Dime Bank is committed to assisting with the continued growth of our communities by helping homebuyers achieve the dream of owning a home, sponsoring community organizations, and supporting local businesses."
